2010 Uhl Collectors' Society Annual Convention

Friday, June 25th & Saturday, June 26th

We're looking forward to seeing you in Jasper!!!

Uhl Collectors Society

May 2010

From The President's Desk

It was Saturday, April 24th and the weather was cloudy with a chance of tornadoes. I was going to Chip Kugler's auction (the-auction-company) in Jasper first. I got to see a piece I hadn't seen before. It was about a 4-inch pitcher with a bulbous bottom. It had a chip in its lip and had the hand made stamp on the bottom. It was brown and tan in color. Unique! I had not seen another one like it. It sold for $425. Feldmeier's added it to their collection.

Hilgemann's auction was my next stop.

Two crème de coffee jugs went for $20. A squat grape pitcher went for $55. 2 plain barrel pitchers went for $30. Feldmeyer's book brought $15. A covered casserole brought $20. A #120 tulip bulb bowl brought $30 Picket fence bowls were bringing $35. A McCurdy book brought $60. An acorn wares jug brought $35. A Acorn ware crock brought $45. A #5 jug brought $65. An Evansville #6 churn brought $360.

While the auctions were going on some members were selling their wares at the 4 H center in Evansville. Dan Hadley, Nathan Posey, Keith Miller and Fritz Puckett were wheeling and dealing. Several Uhl pieces changed hands.

Whew! Was it a busy Uhl day or what?

Les

From the Press Secretary

Well here it is, time to head to Jasper for the convention. Roxanne and I are looking forward to enjoying the happenings and visiting with all.

Something that I did not have room for in the information section, but everyone needs to know is, the restaurant at the Jasper Inn has been closed as of this writing. This will not affect the Banquet as a different company does it.

While Roxanne & I were on a trip in Northern Indiana, we did a bit of "Picking". We found a Creamer as shown in Anna Mary Feldmeyer's book on page 146, plate 272. It is the upper right hand miniature in the plate. It may not be a rare piece, but it's the first I ever have seen in the flesh. Not a bad find for $7.00! We were on our way back South and stopped in Wabash Indiana. Roxanne wasn't too thrilled with the place. I found a "dealer" with 3 stories of "Items" in an 1800's building with fire damage, roof leaks, aisles you had to walk sideways through, and some truly odd smells. I think the "Smells" were what got Roxanne... My kind of Hunting Ground! After talking "Jack" down on an item we paid for it and headed for home. It was a good trip!

Be safe heading to Jasper and we'll see you there!

Russ

UHL Pottery Collector's Society Mission Statement

The mission of the UHL pottery collector's society is to provide an enjoyable structured group environment for those passionate about preserving, collecting & enjoying UHL pottery, which was manufactured between 1849 & 1944 in Evansville & Huntingburg Indiana.

Newsletter Items & Requests

As I stated the last issue, we now are for the most part all connected by the Internet, if you would prefer to receive the newsletter by email; I have started a mailing list of those members requesting it by email. You may contact me at: maundpauhls@comcast.net. You may request only an email copy or add the email copy.

PLEASE, bring with you to the convention or email me pictures of Items or articles I can share with the members in future newsletters. Help me make this publication fun & interesting for all! "Happy Uhling"

Notices & Information

It was voted on and approved, by your board of directors on May 2nd, 2010 that we will only be giving a total of 5 free collectables away with the other original items during the gift drawings.

Nathan Stewart's 3-year term as board member is complete as of the upcoming convention. The board will miss him in his role. Please think about running or recommending someone to nominate to fill this open Board position.
