

Uhl Collector's Society
P. O. Box 251
Knightstown, IN 46148

CLASSIFIEDS

FOR SALE

Blue-and-white grape pitcher inches high with advertising from O'Brien County Co-Op Creamery, Sanborn, Iowa. Mint condition. Price: $230. Phone Andy (414) 324-2525.

WANTED

Any Indiana pottery/stoneware, including advertising pieces. Doesn't have to be Uhl. Describe and price. Don Johnson, Route 2, Box 380, Knightstown, IN 46148.

BITS & PIECES

Continued from front page

CATALOG ROUNDUP

Since the last newsletter, several Uhl members have written requesting more information about Uhl catalogs that have been reprinted. In the next newsletter, we'll give you all the information we can find.

Anyone who has these reprints for sale (or who knows where they are available) are asked to contact Don Johnson so that information can be included in the report. Write to Uhl Collector's Society, c/o Don Johnson, P.O. Box 251, Knightstown, IN 46148.

UHL

Collector's Society

January 1990

Since 1849

Mid-year meeting

Members of the Uhl Collector's Society are welcome to participate in a mid-year get-together on Saturday and Sunday, March 3 and 4, at Evansville, Ind.

The meeting is being held in conjunction with the Uhl Pottery exhibit at the Evansville Museum of Arts and Sciences. The exhibit, which opened on Jan. 8, runs through April 8.

The early-March meeting by Uhl collectors is planned as a mid-year membership drive held in conjunction with the exhibit. Uhl members will be on hand to sign up new members, and answer questions about Uhl pottery.

The exhibit was the idea of Earl McCurdy. He briefly discussed the idea during the Uhl convention this past year. Since then, he has worked with the museum to put together the show.

While the exhibit is already running, Uhl members are encouraged to bring rare or exciting pieces to show during the two-day get-together.

For those Uhl Collector's Society members who plan to stay overnight in Evansville, there are a large number of hotels available. However, Society President Roger Shelton reports that many Uhl members will be staying at the Executive Inn, located at 600 Walnut St. in downtown Evansville. The hotel was contacted about setting aside a block of rooms for Uhl members. Due to the time of year, however, the management at the Executive Inn said there was no need to reserve a whole block. A rate of $46 for a room in the new section of the hotel was quoted to Roger; mention the Uhl Collector's Society when making reservations. The Executive Inn can be reached by phoning at (812) 424-8000.

BITS & PIECES

DUES ARE DUE

All member of the Uhl Collector's Society are reminded that dues for 1990 are now due. A membership blank is contained in this newsletter for your convenience. Mail your dues to Uhl Collector's Society, c/o Sue Uhl Maynard, 3570 Candlewood, Corona, CA 91719.

This will be the final newsletter received by members who do not pay their 1990 dues. To remain a member of the Uhl Collector's Society and keep receiving the Uhl newsletter, please send in the $10 fee.

WEDDING BELLS

Wedding bells were in the air late last summer as Sue Uhl married Alvin Maynard. The two were wed on Aug. 31, 1989, in the Church of the Nazarene at Orange, Calif. The Maynards are living at 3570 Candlewood, Corona, CA 91719. Phone (714) 735-9724.

Continued on back page